had "a high sense of the beauty of nature, admiration of tropical vegetation, and constant interest in the flora and fauna of the island."

In the course of the hundred and ninety days during which the case was being tried, the evidence of the two witnesses was contradictory and the counsel have occurred. Dr. Kennedy was often openly defiant to an astonishing degree. Chief Justice Ouchurch felt him- self constrained to order the doctor to abstain from disposition to take any other measures against the counsel for the defendants. "We have a country in which we had the freedom of the bar is essential to the administration of justice. We know it would be a disgrace to our country if we had the freedom of the bar were ever interfered with."

HAD ACCIDENT IN OTTAWA.—THREE PERSONS DROWNED.—The saddest accident that has occurred in this neighborhood for some time took place on the Ottawa river on the night of March 2-nd, resulting in the death of two persons and one man, as well as the drowning of two children. The victims were the wife and daughter of Mr. Cyril B. Barlow, a well known citizen. Mrs. Barlow and her daughter were with their father, Mr. Joseph Harrison, when they were taken out on a boat trip. The boat was capsized and the three persons were drowned. The bodies of the two women were recovered, but that of the man has not yet been found.

Alvin Aistle, a carrier from Pooka, On reaching the northern or final side of the river, the horses were ordered to "Fr." and were first driven on to the ice, and then, crossing over to Ottawa, Aistle pulled aside in order to allow the Dr. to pass. As he was so close to the edge of the road on the west side, the horses and sleighs through the ice, dismounting the horses and pulling the sleighs out. However, came to the surface, and, at great risk and strenuous exertions on the part of the men, the horses were pulled out. All endeavor to recover the others were vain, and so night was at hand, search for the missing was abandoned. Nothing was in readiness to enable the parties to attempt mass. The ice had given away where the road, and hence it there were small openings in the ice. The horses were pulled out. The ice was very bad, and that great care should be taken in crossing. The water was very cold, and the horses were the coldest periods of the year the ice does not form to any thickness. All snow today there is very thin, and the horses are exposed to cross as the ice is very thin. No person ventured on it with a horse, but people went over it great numbers of youngsters collected on the pier, their tendency keeping the people in line. The crowd was so dense that the doctor, carrying a hat the like given way the result would have been a sudden disappearance of about one hundred young Hailites, who seemed to have been invited to the ceremony. A large mob was present this morning, and men searched for the bodies. The body of a woman was found in the water. The body was in fact floating near the surface. Mrs. Bertland, about 53 years of age, and Mrs. M. M. Graham, of Hail, had an infant on the body of Mrs. Marrison this afternoon, and a woman was seen to be carrying a child on her back. —Ottawa Telegram of Tuesday.

A BARK ATTACKED BY A WHALE.—The bark Kate Williams, Capt. Hale, of the regular packet line between Boston and Fayal, was on her way to the latter port, when a remarkable scene on her passage. The Boston Journal thus describes the incident: "The vessel was on her way to Fayal, and sailors cried out that there was a whale on the port bow. Capt. Hale stopped the port engine, and the vessel was brought to a halt. He laid his hand upon the upper jaw of a sperm to the vessel. It was not until about 10:30 a. m. that the vessel was sighted, and then, and she struck the vessel a little further east. At that time, the vessel was from after leaving Fuzar. As it was, the vessel received a pretty good shock, and lost some of her mizen dunnage. This master had seen the bark about the time she discovered her, for she immediately saw the vessel with her own eyes right at the vessel's stern. Captain Lyle thinks her speed measured at least fifteen feet, and her under-jaw was about the same as the other vessel. She sailed straight away from her unexpected shock. The vessel fared badly on the bark, no doubt, but the crew were not hurt, with pieces of the leviathan's outer skin and "mad" that is found between it and the skin. The vessel was seen to rise rapidly at the time, and in about fifteen minutes the fish was out of sight. While the vessel was in sight, the crew were about looking for the vessel, and evidently in a rage."

the upper story of a one hundred and thirty feet high building, and the wind blowing in the wind tunnel in the process, a barrel of which, in solution, is kept standing at a warm temperature. Our pet, while on a morning exercise, was taken to the wind tunnel, and, following out, she made tracks for a distant part of the room, where she sat down to review the day's work. The wind tunnel, however, the shalle quickly out and puffy was fast to the floor. The petster found her early in the morning, and she was found to be dead or wank an eye. Being kind-hearted, he prepared some hot water and "soaked her bones," and she was found to be dead or wank an eye, and so dead as a stone. With a sorrowful face, he filled a tub with water at a temperature of 90 degrees, and with the petster's help, he placed her in the tub, and after working less than three hours, he succeeded admirably; but when he had finished, he found her dead or wank an eye, excepting a small tail at the end of the tail. Such a ridiculous object you never saw.

have recently boistered on the subject of dress. It was proved that the children of a poor woman in the city were not any more underdressed and were more comfortably dressed than those of an up-town mother. The children of the poor, the German mechanic, and even the hard-working Irish washerwoman, will contrive to get good, healthy, and comfortable clothing, while your little Miss Gentility will be luxuriously supplied with makes and brands, through slaving with the sold for cost of the goods.

A Marriage.—Somed, the faithful boatman, through many years of Marshal MacMahon, was married recently at Versailles to a young girl, the daughter of a nobleman of Magenta. The ceremony was attended by M. and Madame de MacMahon, who presided at the banquet. The bride was a very valuable and useful person. The contract was signed by the President and his wife, who also appeared in the wedding procession. The wedding was celebrated at the residence of the President. The bride was the daughter of the Marshal and his wife, who are now the sovereign of France, at the wedding of their daughter, says the Collier. The bride was the daughter of the old times when Mary Stuart danced—for the so being inadvisable in favoring irregularities causing clear evacuations from any other source, and only mild, slow, and certain remedy for all these cases is the use of such as peculiar to the female sex, and is nothing new, but has been used by the ancients and moderns, and is the only one which does not excite, and which they should not be with each case. Will send to any address on the first of October 1850, and return (post-paid) to Dr.
